TravelerRUTH ATTENDS WIFE'S RITES

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—His huge frame bowed in grief and tears streaming down his tanned cheek, Babe Ruth, idol of American baseball, today saw the body of his wife, Mrs. Helen Woodford Ruth, lowered to its last resting place on a pine-dotted slope of the old Calvary cemetery.

Unmindful of the falling snow the Babe, hat clutched in his huge hand, stood along with his wife's relatives, sobbing convulsively while the Rev. Richard A. Burke of St. Augustine's church said the last prayers for his wife.

Pullman Employs
125 New Workers

A total of 125 additional men have been added to the force of the Pullman company at its Richmond plant since Jan. 1, according to an announcement made yesterday.

The first would make it a felony to give a commission to or be accepted by any person not a licensed broker or salesman and the second would prohibit banks or title companies paying commissions unless to real estate salesmen and brokers.

A vote of thanks was extended to the members of the committee in charge of the entertainment provided for the children of Sunshine camp on Christmas day.

M. A. Hays, state director, who attended the meeting in San Jose recently, reported on two laws discussed at the conclave and which will be presented to the state legislature for action.

The first would make it a felony to give a commission to or be accepted by any person not a licensed broker or salesman and the second would prohibit banks or title companies paying commissions unless to real estate salesmen and brokers.

A vote of thanks was extended to the members of the committee in charge of the entertainment provided for the children of Sunshine camp on Christmas day.

Leo Persico and Dan Noziglia were accepted as new members.

Smith May Try
To Hold Lead
Of Democrats

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—UP—Some Democrats here believe to-day Gov. Alfred E. Smith is trying to retain control of the democratic party organization in view of his radio appeal for help in paying off the $1,500,000 campaign deficit and his suggestion that the party should become militant and aggressive during the next four years.

However, with the exception of an occasional cynical word, most democratic leaders responded enthusiastically to the recent presidential candidate's plea. Most of the leaders are trying to keep submerged for the present. The an important question is as to whether the Smith-Raskob group is to be permitted to retain control of the party.

EARLY INTEREST IN CITY VOTE, BLACK PETITIONS OUT

The general municipal election will be held on Monday, May 13 and if twice the number to be elected are nominated there will be a primary election Monday April 29.

There will be four vacancies on the council to be filled this year, as the terms of Councilmen Black, A. B. Hinckley, E. A. Martin and Mrs. Helen Collins will expire. Three will be elected for the full term of six and one for the short term of two years, a part of the term of the late John T. Collins.

Others who have been mentioned as intending to aspire to seats on the council are A. P. Hill, well known lumberman, Ralph Bergen, head of the Certainteed corporation, W. V. Keltz, pioneer real estate and Walter Johnson, businessman at the west side.

It is confidently expected that both Councilmen Elmer A. Martin and Dr. A. B. Hinckley will retire from their posts.

FORTUNE UNDER PACIFIC TO BE HUNTED

SEATTLE, Jan. 17.—UP—The sum of $3,000,000 in gold lies deep in the cold waters of one of the many passes around Douglas Island on the Inside Passage to Alaska.

It is the dream and hope of two Seattle men, George Henderson and H. G. Koller, to recover that fortune.

Twenty-six years ago one cold foggy September night, the big Alaskan steamer Islander slowly made its way through the treacherous channels.

Aboard the craft was a cargo of gold and passengers, men and women coming home from the northern gold fields. Men and women who had won fortunes, in conquering the hardships of the North.

In the small office of the purser there was more than $3,000,000 in gold. The ship's safe had been filled to overflowing and some of the vast wealth was stacked in boxes and in sacks on the floor.

Suddenly there came a sharp shock, followed by four short blasts on the ship's whistle.

The Islander had struck a submerged reef around Douglas Island. She partially filled, but the rising tide carried the Islander off the reef and she drifted for three miles before sinking with her precious cargo and 78 human lives. The vessel plunged to the bottom 310 feet far below the reach of any known diving outfit of that day.

Today Henderson and Koller have organized a salvage company, and with a diving outfit designed by Henderson, they plan to seek this treasure. Henderson's positive outfit can be used successfully in water to a depth of 600 feet. It consists mainly of a tube, about 15 feet long and weighing more than 5,000 pounds.

Attached to the tube is a powerful light which the designer says will enable the occupants to see for a distance of 100 feet at any depth.

Salvage will be accomplished by a mechanical hand managed by the occupant. Air is taken down in the tube in a tank and in sufficient quantity to last for a month.

Position of the tube will be controlled by men above on a tug, directed by the diver by telephone.

According to the designer the tube has been tested in 410 feet of water off Aiki point.

There is little doubt among shipping men as to the vast wealth aboard the Islander wreck, as Lloyd's paid claims of more than $2,000,000 at the time of the disaster.

Henderson and Koller plan to start their search as soon as weather permits, probably early in the Spring of 1929.

Accompanied by her Russian traveling companion, Baroness Frederick she alighted from a train at the Union station, and said she soon would open a smart perfume shop on Michigan boulevard.
